USPA NEWS - PM Sir Kier Starmer Has Put the Labour Party on Life Support. The Party My Father and His Father Helped to Build.

The Labour Party is widely predicted to suffer heavy losses in the forthcoming local UK council elections in May 2026. Also, in Scotland and Wales Labour will lose the National Assembly control and will be wiped clean. This is deepening concerns about Labour's standing across the United Kingdom. For many lifelong supporters, this decline represents more than an electoral setback; it is seen as a betrayal by PM Sir Kier Starmer of the very movement that generations worked tirelessly to build, said Shazada Hayat President UICF (UK) and international community welfare campaigner.

This by-election at Gorton and Denton is the biggest humiliation, embarrassment and defeat of Labour in history. The Gorton and Denton was a safe Labour seat that has been snatched by a small Green political party. This is now a clear evidence and indication that Prime Minister Sir Kier Starmer has humiliated and put the Labour Party on the life support machine, which means he has to resign or be kicked out of parliament by Labour MPs, said Shazada Hayat.

Labour was founded as a working-class party, created to protect and care for ordinary people, the poor, and the most vulnerable in society, not the privileged and the wealthy. With the sacrifices and commitment of our forefathers. The legendry Labour outstanding leaders such as Clement Attlee and Aneurin Bevan, are today turning in their grave at what PM Starmer is putting the Labour Party through.
The Labour movement became a powerful force on the principal of justice, equality, democracy, and human rights. It stood for patriotism rooted in fairness and for putting Britain first by protecting its people. The many loyal supporters believe those principles have now been abandoned by PM Starmer.

Since becoming Prime Minister, Sir Kier Starmer has shocked both the British and international public and the Labour members in Britain, by moving away from traditional Labour and socialist values. Under PM Starmer's flawed leadership the party is heading toward a disastrous defeat at the next general election. PM Starmer has almost destroyed the Labour Party, just as Rishi Sunak is accused of having crippled the Conservative Party before him. Political analysts suggest that the Conservatives, who governed from 2010 to 2024, may be wiped out in their current form at the next general election. Labour risks a similar fate if PM Starmer is not removed as a matter of utmost urgency as the leader of the Labour Party.

British political history will remember PM Sir Kier Starmer as the leader who brought a once-formidable Labour movement to its knees. This is exactly what the former PM Rishi Sunak will be remembered for, paralysing and damaging the Conservative Party beyond comprehension. Both men are accused by their opponents of compromising British national and public interests. They are also accused of being influenced by foreign prime ministers and the powerful lobby.

It is a well-known fact that PM Sunak was heavily influenced by Indian PM Narendra Modi, and his intelligence service. While PM Sir Kier Starmer is believed to be influenced and takes instructions from Israeli PM Benjamin Netanyahu and associated foreign lobbies.
Shazada Hayat went on to say, The strongest anger toward PM Sir Kier Starmer has come from Labour members and voters over his stance on Gaza. Many accuse him of supporting PM Benjamin Netanyahu's actions, of genocide and heinous war crimes against defenceless Palestinian men, women, and children.

Gaza has faced indiscriminate bombing of homes, schools, and hospitals, blocking food aid, cutting off water and electricity, and the collapse of medical emergency treatment. PM Starmer's public comments defending PM Netanyahu's and the IDF actions is evidence that he has abandoned Labour's moral foundations. This anger was clearly reflected in the Gorton and Denton by-election, where many Muslim voters turned against Labour.

For them, voting against PM Starmer was a matter of conscience and human dignity. The voters expressed that no one can claim to be a good Muslim, Christian, Jew, Hindu or Sikh and be supporting PM Starmer a leader they believe is complicit in genocide and of killing innocent civilian men, women and children. The defeat of Labour by a small independent candidate a plumber Hannah Spencer who smashed PM Starmer and his powerful political machine and his strong lobby and also donations from billionaires were useless, to defeat Hannah Spencer who was only armed with dignity, human rights, justice, fairness and patriotism.

The victory by Hannah Spencer was seen by the British public as a symbolic David-versus-Goliath moment and a warning to Labour MPs who continue to support PM Starmer, then your days are numbered in British parliament as the British public is all set to remove PM Starmer and those who supported him, in his shameful endeavours.
Shazada Hayat said, The British public argue that PM Starmer's government has failed the most vulnerable in British society.

The sick, the unemployed, pensioners, and students have suffered as financial support has been reduced. The cuts to the National Health Service and the armed forces, and the billions of pounds given in aid to Ukraine, have fuelled anger at a time when many Britains are struggling to survive. While the government argues that supporting the war in Ukraine against Russia is necessary, opponents say PM Starmer should have prioritised peace through dialogue and negotiation and not providing arms to escalate the conflict.

The immigration policies under PM Starmer have also been harsh and draconian, which is punishing the wrong people while failing to address deeper problems. Meanwhile, the cost-of-living crisis continues to devastate households. Skyrocketing electricity and gas bills, rising council tax, and everyday expenses have made life unbearable for many. Inequality is widening, with the rich growing richer and the poor sinking further into hardship. For many lifelong and staunch Labour supporters, including those whose families helped build the movement, the likes of my late father Muhammad Noor Khan Hayat and the father of PM Starmer, Rodney Starmer would be devastated to see PM Stramer put the Labour Party on the life support machine.

Unless PM Starmer resigns or Labour MPs and members drag him out of the corridors of power of UK parliament then Britain will sink further into despair and it will most certainly ne the ned of the Labour Party as we knew it. Extinct! For me to remain silent would be treacherous as a proud son of a lifelong Labour supporter.
I cannot stand by and watch the destruction of a great movement that once stood firmly for justice, dignity, human rights and for the welfare of the British people first and foremost. For many long-standing supporters, this moment represents a final reckoning for Labour. Unless the party urgently reconnects with its founding principles of social justice, moral leadership, and solidarity with the oppressed at home and abroad, it risks not just electoral defeat but the loss of its very soul. The warning signs are already clear: a movement built by and for ordinary people cannot survive if it is seen to have turned its back on them,
